Social Science from Chicago

Critical Historical Studies

Critical Historical Studies is an interdisciplinary journal devoted to historical reflections on politics, culture, economy, and social life. CHS features research on the implications of socio-economic transformations for cultural, political, and social change. In the broad tradition of Critical Theory, CHS will explore the complex connections between cultural form and socio-economic context and promote a reflexive awareness of the researcher's own position in the history of global capitalist society.

for their generous support of the

2023 SSHA Annual Conference

Welcome to the 2023 Annual Meeting of the Social Science History Association. The theme “Pursuits of Wellbeing” comes at a time when the questions of what it means to prosper, how prosperity is distributed, and how we should measure the hidden costs of prosperity are the subject of wide and contentious discussion. In this situation, we members of the Social Science History Association must continue to do what we have long done: provide rigorous scholarly research on the past to help inform our understanding of the present. This year’s meeting in Washington DC offers us a special opportunity to share this research while joining together for intellectual and social nourishment.

A special debt of gratitude goes to this year’s Program Committee. Joyce Burnette, Sakari Saaritsa, and Richard Zijdeman worked tirelessly to produce a very full program. Thanks also to the Network Chairs who helped assemble the sessions and to Jeffrey Beemer, Lisa Dillon, Damon Mayrl, Cristián Rodriguez, and Garrett Baker at Indiana University Conferences for providing their help and insights on everything from innovation in the annual meeting to the details of its organization. Thanks also to those who donate to the SSHA. These donations largely support travel awards for promising graduate students. We look forward to renewed efforts to raise funds to secure the SSHA’s future.

I hope you will all avail yourselves of the exciting opportunities to meet and participate at the conference beyond the riveting sessions. The Thursday evening Welcome Reception will feature a Plenary Address offered by Dr. Corianne Scally of the Urban Institute. Her talk is titled: “Pursuing research for impact: How to promote well-being through our work.” On Friday, the Networks will hold their organizational meetings, and everyone is invited to join. On Saturday, do not forget to attend the Business Meeting and Presidential Address, followed by food and drink at the President’s Reception. Thanks to the MIT History Department for helping fund the President’s Reception.

SSHA MEMBERSHIP

The Social Science History Association is an interdisciplinary group of scholars that shares interests in social life and theory historiography, and historical and social-scientific methodologies. SSHA might be best seen as a coalition of distinctive scholarly communities. Our substantive intellectual work ranges from everyday life in the medieval world – and sometimes earlier -- to contemporary global politics, but we are united in our historicized approach to understanding human events, explaining social processes, and developing innovative theory.

The term “social science history” has meant different things to different academic generations. In the 1970s, when the SSHA's first meetings were held, the founding generation of scholars took it to reflect their concern to address pressing questions by combining social-science method and new forms of historical evidence. Quantitative approaches were especially favored by the association's historical demographers, as well as some of the economic, social and women's historians of the time. By the 1980s and 1990s, other waves of scholars – including culturally-oriented historians and anthropologists, geographers, political theorists, and comparative- historical social scientists -- had joined the conversation.

New intellectual directions continue to emerge at the outset of the 21st century. Today's SSHA incorporates a diversity of scholarly styles, with lots of crosstalk among them.

SSHA JOURNAL

Social Science History is dedicated to the study of social theory within an empirical historical context. Our interdisciplinary readership includes anthropologists, demographers, economists, geographers, historians, political scientists, and sociologists, all in pursuit of a deep understanding of societies, past and present. The journal invites articles that blend empirical research with theoretical work, undertake comparisons across time and space, or contribute to the development of quantitative and qualitative methods of analysis. As the official journal of the Social Science History Association, Social Science History reflects the interests of members who are active in the Association's diverse range of research networks. However, it also welcomes submissions from the broader international research community of historically informed social scientists. Social Science History is published by Cambridge University Press. The contact email for the editorial office is socialsciencehistory@ssha.org
